Friday January 26 LAST RITES ARE HELD FOR DR. W. H. DAVIS

Pioneer Dr. Dies

(picture of Dr. W. H. Davis)

A host of friends gathered at the Presbyterian Church Thursday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock to pay a last tribute to Dr. William Harold Davis, 81, who died at his Arlington home early Wednesday morning. His passing draws to a close a prominent career as a practicing physician of Tarrant County for more than half a century. He had been ill for the last 27 months as a result of a partial stroke of paralysis.

Services were conducted by John H. Patterson, pastor, Rev S. M. Bennett, pastor of the Arlington Heights Presbyterian Church, Fort Worth, who read the scripture, and Rev. A. W. Hall, of the Arlington Methodist Church, offering a prayer.

Dr. Clyde Jay Garrett, Mrs. W. L. Hughes, Miss Christine Jones, and L. H. Flynt, sang "In the Garden" and "Abide with Me." The profusion of beautiful flowers were mute expression of Dr. Davis' wide circle of friends throughout the State.

He was born in Smythe County, Virginia, 11 miles east of Marion, Dec. 12, 1859 on his fathers farm. He attended neighborhood school, two sessions and an agricultural college and two years under a preceptor before he entered Physicians and Surgeons College, now combined with the State University at Baltimore, Md. He was graduated from the college at the age of 21, in time to have his kit packed and go down to Washington the morning of March 4, 1881 to hear President Hayes inaugurated.

Texas was considered "the jumping off place" at that time, but Dr. Davis saw opportunity in the new state, and set out on the 10-days trip, accompanied by his brother. He spent one night in Dallas coming via rail to Arlington the next day. and spent the night at the (unreadable....) next day ??? Handley and decided to locate there.

Dr. Davis spent $25 of his $65 capital for a quick-stepping pony. A saddle took $130 more. He accepted the offer of sleeping quarters at the back of a drug store and waited for his first patient.

Three days later, breaking his picket rope in a storm, the pony was crippled. It hardly would have been more tragic if the doctor had lost his medicine kit. The Handley folks, however, were neighborly. They lent him a horse, and it wasn't long before he got one of his own for treating two cases of scarlet fever.

Arlington with its bigger population and frequent gun battle looked more profitable to Dr. Davis after six years of treating Handley's aches and pains, and he made the move.

Frequently he recalled that at the time he opened his Arlington office there were seven saloons in the town and seven "feuds" for every saloon. Consequently, though malaria raged in those days, he administered first aid for gunshot wounds oftener than he measured out quinine.

After a few weeks he was appointed city physician, a post he held for 20 years.

Once in a wholesale shooting on the railroad station platform on Christmas Eve, four men were shot to death and another was so seriously wounded that he lived barely long enough to be taken to the county jail and made comfortable on a cot. Dr. Davis took him to the jail on a midnight train and had to wait in Fort Worth until he could get a train back the next day. When he got back the town was in an uproar. The shooting had been the outburst of an old feud. Two men came to the doctor and got a list of all his patients, so that if he were needed quickly it wouldn't be difficult to find him.

Shortly after he moved to Arlington he joined Dr. H. C. Stevens in partnership. The very pleasant partnership continued for four years until Dr. Stevens moved to Fort Worth to practice.

He was active at all times in the social and civic life of his community. He served as both alderman and mayor. While mayor he signed the first bond issue for the first sewer system of the town. He also was a charter member of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce and served it as president.

He was active in the Fort Worth and Tarrant County Medical Association and at one time served as vice president of the body.

Dr. Davis also was a charter member of the Arlington Knights of Pythias Lodge. He was an elder of the Arlington Presbyterian Church at the time of his death.

Politics was another of his interests. A life long Democrat, at one time he was a member of the Tarrant county executive committee.

Notwithstanding his other interests, Dr. Davis' chief delight was his automobile. For more than 20 years he served his patients on horseback, then by horse and buggy.

When automobiles came, Dr. Davis was the owner of the third one in Tarrant County.

Grandsons Act As Pallbearers At R. T. McFadin Rites.

Rev. Ike Sidebottom conducted services at the Moore Funeral Home last Friday afternoon for R. T. McFadin, 89, who was burned to death Wednesday night of last week when his farm home, at Webb, caught fire. Mr. McFadin had been a resident of Tarrant county for eighty years.

The origin of the fire was not determined nor discovered until the house was engulfed in flames. As Mr. McFadin attempted to make his way out of the house the roof collapsed pinning him underneath the flames.

Born October 18, 1850 in Tennessee he was the son of Mr. William McFadin, who was a racehorse breeder (?) at Kentucky before moving to Tennessee. His mother was the former Emily Davis, also of Kentucky. At the age of five the McFadins moved to Texas, and settled in Tarrant County, Watson community. His friends and younger members of his family have enjoyed many stories about his early days. In his boyhood he was a cowhand and later rode as a Texas ranger. He enjoyed reminiscing and his favorite tales told of the Negro slaves and the Indian raids. He acted as one of the guards over the graves at Watson community so thickly settled was the section with Indians. He was present at the first court session ever held in Dallas County where the jurymen sat on a log on the Trinity River bank.

When Mr. McFadin first came to this country there was only one store in Fort Worth and Dallas was not known. He grew into manhood and added years as both these country towns developed into prominent Texas cities. During these years he started farming near Arlington. He joined the Church of Christ many years ago, then located at Shady Grove, northeast of Arlington.

Eleven years ago he bought the two-acre plot at Webb. Since that time he has been retired. He was always interested in the civic and social developments and gained a host of fiends during his years in this section of the country. Many feel that with his passing one of the last old land marks in Tarrant county fades and takes with it one of its beloved citizens.

Pallbearers were grandsons, Harvey Staley, Jack McFadin, Truman McFadin and Everett McFadin.

Burial was in the Watson cemetery beside his parents who passed away over sixty years ago.

Surviving Mr. McFadin are his wife, Mrs. Lula McFadin and eight children, three sons, J. T., H. G., and Clint McFadin, of Arlington, five daughters, Mrs. W. D. Staley, Dallas; Mrs. J.

SULFAPYRIDINE—THE MIRACLE WORKER IN A WAR ON PNEUMONIA

When a loved one was stricken with pneumonia a few years back, and you looked deep into your physician's eyes to ask: "Isn't there something you can do?" in most cases he was forced to shake his head in helplessness. In those days dreaded pneumococcus took 100,000 lives annually. But a new miracle worker—sulfapyridine—has come into the medical picture, and will save the lives of approximately 50,000 pneumonia victims this year, according to Stephen J. McDonough, medical journalist, who writes a dramatic personal story in the current Rotarian magazine.

Shortly after he had released a sulfapyridine press dispatch—with skepticism and crossed fingers—McDonough found himself desperately ill with the most deadly type of pneumonia infection. But his physician wasn't helpless, because sulfapyridine was just emerging from its experimental stage, and a supply was rushed 500 miles to treat his case. Within a week after sulfapyridine treatments were begun he was out of the hospital. Miraculous? Yes, declares this Rotarian contributor, but that's the way this new chemical works.

An allied drug of sulfanilamide, which was originally "just a brick-red powder—one of the coal-tar dyes used to color cloth," sulfapyridine is unlike many other germicides, which annihilate germs, McDonough writes. "Sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine smother the disease-causing bacteria. Most disease germs can grow only when they have enough oxygen, just like a human being. They use oxygen only by first converting it into hydrogen peroxide, the common gargling fluid. Sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine stop this oxygen conversion process and keep the germs from breathing until the white blood corpuscles consume them."

LUTTRELL GROCERY TO OBSERVE THEIR 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Plans have been made by the Luttrell Brothers Grocery and Market for the best anniversary celebration that they have had during the 40 years that they have been doing business in Arlington. A total of 24 bushel baskets of groceries will be given away, special displays have been arranged, and many food representatives will serve free samples to the visitors.

According to Fred Luttrell the loaded bushel baskets of groceries will be the best that they have ever given away and will contain a variety of choice articles. Everyone is invited to come into the store and register for the baskets. No purchase is necessary. The registering will be done today and Saturday and the drawings will be Saturday at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. 4 p.m., and 6 p.m. At each drawing, 6 baskets of groceries will be given away.

A number of improvements have been made in the store in preparation for the anniversary sale. The major improvement has been the building of a new fresh vegetable stand. The stand which is in front of the large display window has been built considerably higher than the old one. The vegetables are kept fresh by two fine water sprays. The stand has been painted a light cream to match the interior of the store.

In 1900 when George Luttrell first opened his grocery store, it stood on a dusty street as Arlington was a small village without any gravelled streets. Swinging kerosene lamps were used to light the store, there were many large barrels, and corn, tomatoes, sardines and salmon were about the only canned goods to be found.

Some farmer would yell, "Whoa" and his team of horses would bring the wagon to rest amidst a cloud of dust in front of the store. He would take jugs in with him and would proceed to buy a jug full of molasses out of a barrel, a side of bacon, and the bacon wasn't sliced either, 100 pounds of sugar and a barrel of flour. After he had finished purchasing $40 or $50 worth of groceries he would load them in his wagon and drive to his farm near Cedar Hill or some such place. It would be some time before he would need to make another trip to the grocery store.

The housewife of the early 20th century would have been amazed if someone had told her that biscuits would some day be sold in cans, all ready to cook, that mayonnaise would be in jars, and potatoes would come in cans already fried.

But that isn't all. Packing house meat was unknown. Practically the only meats sold were salt bacon, chicken and turkeys. Chickens and turkeys sold by the head instead of by the pound. Turkeys sold for 50 cents or 75 cents a head and a dozen chickens brought about $1.50. Baked or boiled hams were unknown in the grocery market.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

Luttrells had one of the first grocery refrigerators. It resembled an oversized old fashioned kitchen stove and it was used to keep eggs and butter fresh, 20 years ago. Ice was hauled from Fort Worth in a wagon and the ice man here kept it covered with sacks and straw.

Many things came in barrels, including white and brown sugar, but not powdered sugar, because there wasn't any. A few mixed candies came unwrapped. Today even the 1 cent pieces of candy come wrapped. The housewife of early 1900 would have been out of luck if she had depended on the store for her preserves and jellies, as they simply weren't to be found in the stores. Very little meal was sold as people took their corn to the mills to be ground.

Hog lard was carried in buckets, but scarcely any was sold as people made their own. Occasionally George Luttrell would get a case of pickles, but they were hard to sell and he remembers that the first olives that he got were unsalable and he had to give them away. Since people had to learn to like olives he says that avocados of today remind him of the olives of yesterday. According to Mr. Luttrell more and more people are learning to like avocados.

In those days there wasn't a single soda fountain in town and no milk was sold in stores. Crackers were bought by the 20 pounds and were sold from open boxes. After Luttrell had been in business a number of years he was able to buy the first cereal to be sold in his store. It was oatmeal and it was very crudely packed with some husks in it and it took 30 minutes to cook it, but it was wonderful at that time. Chicken feed was not sold in grocery stores. A little corn was ground for hogs as most of the residents of Arlington had their own hogs.

Usually about $500 worth of plug tobacco was kept on hand. A few cigars were sold and there were no cigarettes in Arlington. When cigarettes were first introduced they were quite the topic of conversation, and a person who had any was the talk of the town.

Dried fruits were a good seller and came in 50 pound boxes and sacks. Vegetables could not be found in the early store through the winter. Bananas sold slowly as people considered them a luxury. A few oranges were kept through the winter, with a large supply at Christmas when nuts could be bought also.

Today someone from the store goes to the market in the city every morning and chooses the choicest of fruits and vegetables from California, Washington, Colorado, Florida, Mexico and other places.

One man in town did all the delivering for all the grocery stores. Each store paid him $3 a month to deliver their groceries and he went by the stores each day and picked up the orders. One delivery man was sufficient for the town as people never ordered every day—much less went to the store several times a day.

During the past 40 years a great many changes have taken place, not only in the appearance of the store, but in the buying. People no longer buy 72 pounds of flour, but 6 and 12 pound sacks are the main sellers. One of the greatest changes has been that products are now as sanitary as possible. Merchandise is no longer sold from the open barrel, and cellophane has been a great help in keeping products sanitary.

Ray Shrader, chief pilot of the Braniff Airlines, spoke to the engineers last Thursday night. He revealed all the preparations required for a flight by the commercial pilot.

Oldest Letter Known In Tarrant County Written In 1864

--from Smithfield Bulletin

Mrs. G. W. Larsen, who resides three miles northeast of Smithfield, allowed the Smithfield Springs Bulletin reporter to peep into her interesting collection of old keepsakes this week. One of the most interesting and probably the oldest letter known in Tarrant County is among her collection.

It was written by a Confederate soldier to his Mother and sister who lived in Bell County, Texas. The soldier, M. W. Murrill who wrote the letter was an uncle of Mrs. Larsen of Smithfield. The letter is reproduced for the historical interest it bears.

Camp Tunell Hill, Ga.

Jan. 17, 1864

Dear Mother and Sister:

I again take my pen in hand to let you know that I am still among the land of the living and enjoying very good health. The boys are all well, Joe Blair was doing tolerable well the last we heard from him. Virgie Cross is well. Joe Blair got a letter from John Blair not long ago and he was all right. There has been furloughs granted one to every twenty-five men. Our company got three furloughs all drawn for one this morning, but I did not get one. Times are very peaceable here now. I heare of no fighting any where. I heare the Yanks have invaded Texas. I am very sorry to heare of that. I wish I was there to fight on my own side but I am here and will fight them the best I can here. I don't think the fools can ever get to Bell County for there is nothing to support an army there and they can't get along but they may do a lot of damage to Eastern Texas.

I got a letter from home dated the 28th of Oct. which did a lot of good to heare from you. It was the first letter I have got from home. I was glad to heare that Jim was standing the service so well. Tell me if he is still Cavalry or not and give me his Co., Reg., and Brig., for I want to write him. I wish I was in Texas to get to come home and see you again. I hope the time is not far distant when I shall see you all again. I am in need of shoes and socks. I could buy socks cotton at $5. per pair and yarn are $10. Everything is very high here. Common Jense pants are $50 dollars per pair, molasses $4 to $5 quart. As for meat I can't buy any. Flour is 75 cents lb. soda $5 dollars per lb., Coffee $15 dollars lb., Sugar $4 dollars per lb. Tobacco is the cheapest thing we buy we can get a good tobacco for 2 dollars per plug. Peas 1 dollar a qt., Oranges are 1 to 2 dollars a piece. Apples are $3 to 6 dollars a doz. owing to quality. We are allowed $144 dollars a year for clothing and we did not take it all up. Law allows us 60 days furogh and 10 cents mileage per mile if a man does not get a furlough he can draw the mileage the next time he draws it will amount to $140. But money is not worth anything hardley worth picking up. Joseph Johnston command of the army I am in now. We are seeing very good times now. We have a very comfortable house but have to carry wood 1-4 mile up hill on our shoulder. A lot of boys are marrying these Georgia girls. There has been about a dozen of my Brigade married since we come here. Write to me by way of Shenenes Port, La., on Alexanders 40 4ts postage and they will come Co. 18 Texas Calvo Smiths Brig. Cleburn Division.

So Good By,
J. W. Murrill

The terrible economic condition portrayed in this soldier's letter should give people in 1940 great courage and consolation. Even after the years of depression and recession and with the world at war, we have never experienced such prices as the Confederate soldier tells about.

Lieutenant M. Camp Writes Interesting Letter From Panama

The following interesting letter from Lieut. Marshall Camp, who is in the Canal Zone with the U. S. fleet, son of Mrs. T. J. Camp, South Center, was received by Mrs. Geo. H. Wessler this week:

"You ask for an interesting letter, which is next to impossible for me to write. In the first place I can't write a very interesting letter, and in the second place most of the things of interest about the Canal Zone are restricted for military purposes and I'm honorbound to keep them that way.

"It is interesting to note that a policy has been set up for transiting belligerent ships that is something like this: When two ships of warring nations desire to transit the Canal, one is given 24 hours start on the other so that there is no possibility for hostilities to occur within the 300 mile safety zone.

"One may stand on the banks of the Canal and see ships from all nations. It is practically a world cruise in miniature.

"As you probably know by now, I think flying is the only occupation for a young man. But flying in the Tropics is even better. True, we fly over jungle 98 per cent of the time, but it is a pretty jungle, palms, bananas, mangoes, crocodiles, etc. Accidents are rare and of a minor nature. We get our share of rescue trips out to crippled sail boats, fishing sloops, and in two cases, palatial yachts.

"Occasionally we get to make a trip back to "God's Country" by air, and it is then that we see Nature in all its splendor. From tropical palms in Panama to snow capped mountains in Mexico, From smooth, quiet beaches in Panama to earthquakes and violently erupting volcanos in Costa Rica. From thoroughly civilized Americans to completely uncivilized Aztecs and Incas in Guatamala and Honduras—all in all a wonderful education.

"We make cross country flights into foreign countries to maintain goodwill, and to maintain navigating proficiency, from Guatamas on the north to Peru on the south. The equator is crossed on almost every trip to South America.

"The United Fruit Company has several large banana plantations that we have gone through. One has over 1080 miles of good railroads on it. Its name is Puerto Armuelles. Sixty million bunches of bananas annually is its production.

"Fishing in Panama is known as the best in the world. And it must be when a novice like myself can go out and nonchalantly drag in a 250 pound sail fish after 3 hours of fighting with him! Mackerel Jacks, Corlina Sharks, Sail Fish, and many other varieties are abundant, and bite almost all the time.

"Sailing is a grand pastime, too. Panama Bay offers many protected nooks for beginners to learn the art of handling a ship under sail. Golf goes on the year round, with Panama Club being one of the finest courses 'South of the Border.' All in all, Panama is a tropical Paradise!"

They lived at 406 South Center.

Besides her four children Mrs. Jones is survived by her sister, the former Nannie Smith, now Mrs. Garland Morton of Ada, Okla.

The following information about Mrs. Jones was written by Mrs. J. I. McCauley:

Carrie E. Smith Jones was born June 16, 1874 in Conway, Arkansas, the first daughter of L. B. and Annie E. Smith. At the age of 2 years she moved with her parents to Arlington, Texas, where she grew to womanhood.

In 1892 she was united in marriage to J. P. Jones and to this union four children were born—Neva Gallahar, Genevieve Harrer, and Lucille Harrer, all of Roff, Oklahoma, and one son, Paul Jones of Raymondville, Texas. She has 9 grandchildren.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

Her husband was called to his Heavenly home on Dec. 31, 1936. She went to join him April 12, 1940.

At an early age Carrie Smith Jones identified herself with the Methodist church at Arlington, Texas, later moving her membership to the Roff Methodist church.

One of the nicest things that can be said about this mother, sister, friends, is that she gave to the world four fine children who remain to reflect her fine Christian character.

Throughout her closing years, encumbered by declining health and fading eyesight, she retained her sweetness—so much so, that like the setting sun merges its rosy hues with the night—so she leaves an afterglow—for all who loved her, to remember.

Friday May 24 Willard Chamberlin Last Rite Held In Henderson

Funeral services were conducted at the Crim Funeral Chapel at Henderson Monday morning at 11 o'clock for Willard Chamberlin, Sr., former Arlington resident, who died early Sunday morning after a long illness. Rev. John H. Patterson, assisted by Rev. Reeves of the First Christian Church of Henderson, officiated.

Rev. Patterson concluded the service with the following poem by Edward Markham:
"The color of the ground was in him, the red earth,
The tang and odor of the primal things—
The rectitude and patience of the rocks;
The gladness of the wind that shakes the corn,
The courage of the bird that dares the sea,
The justice of the rain that loves all leaves
The pity of the snow that hides all scars;
The loving kindness of the wayside well,
The tolerance and equity of light;
That gives as freely to the shrinking weed,
As to the great oak flaring in the wind—
To the grave's low hill as to the Matterhorn
That shoulders out the sky."

Willard Chamberlin was born in Mississippi Sept. 19th, 1854. In 1874 he settled on the Willard Chamberlin Survey at Duffau, Erath County, on land granted to his father by the Republic for his services in the Revolution with Mexico. He moved to Stephenville in 1896, where he was elected Tax Collector, and later went into the general mercantile business.

In 1882 he was married to Miss Sudie Parham, and to this union were born seven children, four of whom are still living, and were at the funeral. They are Willard Jr., and Frank of Dallas; Cecil of Frederick, Oklahoma, and Mrs. Hubbard Chamberlin of Henderson. One sister, Mrs. E. R. Selman of Hico is also still living.

His first wife died in 1903 and in 1907 he married Miss Lily Pearl Ponder of Stephenville. In 1928 when Dean E. E. Davis had invited Mrs. Chamberlin to accept the position as head of the Home Economics Department of NTAC they moved to Arlington, where they continued to make their home until August of last year. After a month's visit with his daughter and her husband at Henderson last April, Mr. Chamberlin came back with the idea of moving to Henderson.

At one side of his daughter's beautiful back lawn was a three room efficiency house with every convenience, and a kindly negro man who worked for them to look after his needs. It was in this little "Garden of Eden" as he chose to call it, that he spent his last days, and "Dee," the negro man, never tired of caring for him. At the funeral he was given a front seat, and Rev. Patterson paid high tribute to him in his talk.

No more fitting description of Mr. Chamberlin could be given than Markham quoted above. He was an avid reader, well informed, strong in his convictions and outspoken in his ideas. He was liberal in his thinking, and in his early days was a member of the Populist Party. He was full of gratitude for all of the good that came to him—for his children, for his wife. He would say of her: "She is 99.9 perfect" and with a twinkle in his eye: "I've got to reserve one-tenth so that I can criticise her once in a while!" He loved his friends, and nothing pleased him more than to have them come to his home.

Often a group would gather in his living room or their beautiful back yard for a summer picnic. Religion, the philosophies of the world, politics—all of these were of vital interest to him, and he wrote often to the daily papers (unreadable....).

He was buried in the Alford Memorial Cemetery at Henderson, of which his daughter is chairman of the Board of Directors. Again quoting from Edward Markham's Lincoln; "As when a kindly cedar, green with boughs, goes down with a great shout upon the hills, and leaves a lonesome place against the sky."—so it is with his going.

Helen C. Wessler.

The Fifth Column (editorial)

On the radio and in the newspapers much has been said about the Fifth Column recently. Many people probably understand what is meant by this term but do not know how it originated. In military formations we have four marching columns of soldier well-trained to cooperate in battle. The Fifth Column of soldiers has been organized in Germany but does not march with the other four columns; instead, they have been dropped into enemy territory which is about to be invaded by the other four columns. Not all of them have had to be dropped by parachute because a portion of the Fifth Column has been living in the enemy territory maybe for many years. The Fifth Column is composed of all those people, citizens or otherwise, who are in a foreign country from and sympathetic to the one waging war.

Not so many years before this "sneak-thief" idea was promoted by the various isms of Europe, practically the whole world knew what the potential strength in battle was of all the countries. Under this new Fifth Column practice, a very small country may, through many years of preparation, breeding and propaganda, place an enemy next door to every loyal citizen of any country which at the proper moment could and would weaken that country to such an extent that resistance from invasion would be useless, just as it has been useless in Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland and Belgium, and apparently is having its effect on France and England. The United States and all other countries as well who have not been ravaged by the heat of battle in actual warfare may well receive a good lesson and profit thereby in a general round-up of every suspect having anything to do with Fifth Column activities. Within 3 months the government can largely have this danger under control by the establishment of concentration camps and chain gangs. These people should be guarded and forced to work like the criminals that they are. They should not be allowed to languish in jail or concentration camps at a big expense to the government and loyal citizens of the United States if they are at all able to work at any kind of work. It is the duty of every citizen to keep an ear open for disloyal conversation and such be reported to the nearest officers.

To Whom It May Concern:----

The undersigned has been requested to make a statement regarding numerous and sundry rumors that have been floating around Arlington for the past two weeks that reflect on my character and integrity. All of these rumors have grown out of a very small incident which took place in my private office at Southern Ornamental Iron Works' plant, which office, by the way, is sound-proof. A gentleman from Fort Worth, whom I have known for twenty years, entered my private office and started a conversation with regard to the present European conflict. He plainly stated his views and I plainly stated mine. The conversation took place at about five o'clock p.m. and lasted not over two minutes, and was heard by no one except the two of us.

Out of this two-minute conversation have grown rumors, statements, and mis-statements that would fill volumes, that would implicate not only the two participants, but several foreign powers as well. Such rumors as have been circulated around Arlington are gross insults to the writer and his family. They are a blot and stain on a decent community and are cancerous in effect. The person or persons responsible for these rumors seem to have one ambition, and that, to make the City of Arlington the "Gossip Center of the Southwest." If this condition continues to flourish, then it will not be long until the cancer has eaten everything except the bones and no one will care to live in such a community.

A good many of my friends in Arlington have come to me with these rumors and I have told them briefly of the incident mentioned above and they have laughed at the ridiculous tales and rumors that have spread all over Arlington and surrounding cities and towns. I have invited Mayor Altman, as well as some fifteen or twenty of our leading business men in Arlington, to investigate these rumors to the limit and if I am guilty of any of them, I stand ready to be convicted; if I am innocent, then I most certainly expect to be acquitted.

I will not mention here any of the rumors that have been going around during the past several days as all of them would just about fill the Arlington Journal and Mr. Perry would not have room for worthwhile news, but I sincerely invite any citizen or citizens of Arlington or elsewhere to feel free to come to my office or my residence and I will explain in detail just what it is all about.

Now, with regard to my status as a loyal citizen of the United States:

I was born on a farm in Ellis County in 1900. My father was German and my mother was Polish. They married and came to the United States in 1881 and settled in Chicago, Illinois. Shortly thereafter, my father took out naturalization papers and became a citizen of the United States. He reared five boys and one girl. One of my brothers served his country over-seas in the first World War, and was wounded for life; the other brother was in New York ready to sail for Europe when the Armistice was signed. When I was two years old, my mother died and left my father with three or four rather small children to raise. This meant that each one had to look out for himself the best he could and make his or her own way in the world. I was forced to make my own living from the time I was eight years old. I completed my high school education and saved enough pennies working on my father's farm and elsewhere to pay for a business education. As soon as my stenographic and bookkeeping course was finished, I began work for Mr. Frank E. Austin, President of Austin Brothers Steel Company, Dallas, Texas, the man by whom I am now employed. I have worked for Mr. Austin for the past twenty-one years in one capacity or another. If there is anyone that doubts my honesty and integrity let that person call on Mr. Austin at 621 Republic Bank Building, Dallas, Texas, and he will supply any information that might be desired. I have never spent a minute in jail nor have I had a fight with anyone; and incidentally, I pay my bills when due.

I would be willing to lay down my life in defense of the United States. Like many other American citizens, I do not feel that we should, as a nation, defend our country by sending our expeditionary forces across to the other side of the Atlantic Ocean. Neither do I feel that we, as American citizens, should be too quick to accuse our neighbors of Un-American Activities. Most certainly, we should not participate in idle gossip and cause rumors to be circulated that would be harmful and cause embarrassment to those unjustly accused.

Again, in conclusion, if there is anyone in Arlington or elsewhere that doubts my honesty and sincerity, let that person or persons submit facts properly substantiated to back up his or her accusations. These facts, if any, should be reported to Mayor Altman or some committee for proper investigation. I would gladly appear before Mayor Altman or such a committee to face the accuser or accusers, which the case might be. Lies and rumors can do much harm and I sincerely hope that my case will have a lot to do with suppressing such idle gossip that has been running rampant in our fair city for a good many days, weeks, months, and even years. Other rumors regarding the Southern Ornamental Iron Works and its employees have been circulated at various times that had no truth or facts back of them and have been originated from sources unknown.

In order to quiet any further rumors about my having been arrested and placed in Jail on Friday of last week, I wish to inform my friends, my fellow employees and others that might be interested, that my wife and I were attending the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Agnes E. Orr, in Texarkana, Texas, and I was not spending a quiet weekend in jail.

May God forgive those that have a guilty conscience and a "waggin tung."

Heart Attack Fatal To Dr. W. C. Hale

A long and successful career was closed Wednesday morning at 5:30 a.m. as the result of a heart attack to Dr. W. C. Hale, prominent physician as he was arising. The tall, neat, and genial physician had been in failing health for the past number of months.

Dr. Hale, 64, former veteran health officer of Dallas County who gained statewide reputation as an expert in mental cases retired to his country estate upon retiring 8 years ago from practice. He was born September 10, 1875, at Bryan. He received his education at old Add-Ran College, the predecessor of Texas Christian University, while it was still located at Thorpe Springs. He started his practice at Smithfield, Tarrant Co. but moved to Dallas some forty years ago.

He owned a great part of the land where the Sears, Roebuck & Company warehouse now stands.

A long-time member of the Central Christian Church, he transferred his membership to Arlington when the family moved here. He was a York Rite Mason.

Dr. Hale was a teen-age graduate and a practicing physician at the age of 21. He became jail physician during the administration of County Judge Hiram F. Lively, and under Judge Quentin D. Corley began a service as county health officer that was to last until his retirement.

Services were conducted Thursday afternoon at 4 p.m. at the chapel of Ed S. Smith and Brother Dallas, with interment at the Oakland Cemetery. Dr. W. W. Phares officiated with the assistance of Rev. Noel Kieth of Arlington.

Survivors include his wife, the former Miss Sarah Elizabeth Holloway of Thorpe Springs, whom he married forty-six years ago; a son, C. H. Hale of Arlington; three grandsons, and daughter-in-law Mrs. Ottsie Hale of Dallas.

PRELIMINARY CENSUS COUNT SHOWS GAIN OF 619 FOR ARLINGTON IN 10 YEARS

The preliminary count of the returns for the census taken in Arlington in April have been announced as 4,240 by W. O. Gatton supervisor of the census in the 12th district of Texas. This is a gain of 619 over the 1930 census which was 3,661.

When the preliminary census figures in 1930 were released as 3,638, the citizens of Arlington felt that all of the population had not been counted and the Boy Scouts made a complete survey to find residents who had not been counted. Of the same 200 names turned in by the Scouts, it was found that 23 had not been counted and the census total was raised to 3,661. In releasing the 1940 figures Supervisor Gatton stated that the figures are preliminary and subject to revision.

In the past 20 years the population of Arlington has made a gain of 1245. From 1920 to 1930 the population grew 626, only 7 more than the preliminary returns for 1940.

New construction has been pointed to as the keynote to the steady normal growth of Arlington. Ever since the Texas and Pacific Railroad built through Arlington in 1876 and the town was moved from its first location about two miles east of here, Arlington has continued to gain.

During the last 10 years $500,000 worth of public buildings have been erected and Arlington streets have been improved to the extent of $150,000.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

Enrollment at NTAC has kept stride with the growth of the town and the college has contributed much to the building gain—with a $112,500 science building, a $30,000 gymnasium, a boys' dormitory, athletic field and improvements to the dining hall and library.

The Arlington public school system has contributed $250,000 to the gain. New elementary schools have been built on the north side and the south side of town and a new gymnasium and home economics cottage have been built at the high school.

The $40,000 municipal building was completed in February, 1929, and a $75,000 post office is scheduled for completion in August and more than 40 new homes have been built in the past 10 years in the city. This does not include about 100 new homes which have been built outside the city limits in the last decade.

When the present $80,000 street improvement project is completed practically all Arlington streets will be hard surfaced. A short while ago Center, College, Abram and a part of Main Street were practically the only paved streets.

Among Arlington's industries are numbered the Southern Ornamental Iron Works, the Fluffy Ruffling Factory which ships organdy ruffles and blouses to all parts of the United States and Canada, the Syfo Water Company which distributes carbonate water over a wide territory, a chicken hatchery which ships all over the western hemisphere, a can factory, two feed mills and two mattress factories are relatively new businesses and construction will start next week on a refrigerated food locker plant.

Through the years, Arlington has gained statewide recognition, first for its mineral well at which the first drinking fountain was erected at the turn of the century, and more recently for pioneering in the use of a drunk-o-meter by the police department.

Prepare For War (editorial)

We can no longer spend our time talking about war in Europe because it is already in the United States. That doesn't mean that cannons are blazing forth with their deadly charges of hot steel nor does it mean that airplanes are dropping bombs on our cities. It does mean that war has adversely affected the economic equilibrium of many business and professional institutions at least temporarily. Everybody knows that this situation came about very recently. This is the first phase of our participation in war in 1940.

How shall we prepare for this war? By using the brain power and muscular energy we possess. The production of foodstuffs is a part of the preparation where rural people can especially do good. It is not necessary for farsighted people to wait for the government to take charge of everything necessary to the sustenance of life. Preservation of commodities on hand and the production of more should employ long hours which heretofore have been idle hours for country people.

On every hand now, in the city, can be heard the serious remarks made by people regarding moving to the country. No longer in this modern age accompanied by modern warfare do people think so well of living in congested areas, especially near oil refineries, airports and railroad centers which make an ideal military objective. Like in France and other invaded countries of Europe our cities shall surely become hotspots for the raids of enemy aerial attacks when war comes as it surely shall.

The minds of our people are rapidly preparing for war as far as imagination will permit them to do. We have many examples which now have been written on the pages of history during 1939 and 1940 to which we may refer for study of the rapid change from peaceful security to one of disastrous war and destruction in a few short days or weeks. We have been the kind of people that always told ourselves that "it can't happen to us." It is hard for the human mind to be so changed in one year enough to accept such a great change as has been wrought in France, Poland, and all the other countries which have been made victims of the German war machine.

We do not know how many men nor of what ages shall be called to the stars and stripes and go away to training camps within the next few days. We are all standing ready, waiting to be placed at whatever posts our country needs us. But while we are waiting it behooves us all to practice thrift and production of the things vital to feed a people while at war for the preservation of our country and its ideals. It is well known that countries of the old world have been envious and jealous of our country of millionaires and pleasure-seeking people. It is only natural and human for people to want the good things of life. Because they have bred and inbred their people to the extent of degradation, they have so crowded their little nooks and corners in Europe that death on the battlefield seems rather to be chosen than to live under the yoke of bondage over-breeding has brought about. We are a young nation and still have thousands of acres of virgin territory undeveloped and life is sweet to us. Adventure in the fields of science for the production of luxuries and conveniences to make life more enjoyable is still interesting to Americans. But now, alas; we are to be forced into a nasty, degrading era of bloody war with at least two nations, Germany and Italy, which have encouraged the increase in their populations equal to that of breeders of mice. Let's prepare ourselves.

Bruce Young Writes From North China

Bruce Young, F2-c
USS BLACK HAWK
Asiatic Station
San Francisco, Cal.

May 20, 1940
Chefoo, North China

Dear Mrs. Voss and Dr. McKissick:

Well, guess you thought I'd never write. I have been pretty busy out here now. I am now working in the Log Room for Engineers. I find it much more suitable work than working with steam turbines.

I had a grand chance of getting in the band on this ship when I first came aboard, but was promised the job as yeoman in the Log Room, so I thought it over. I now have access to the Band's facilities and also plenty of time to write my music. Also time to make a yeoman rating.

I guess everything is changing up quite a bit back in Arlington. Wish I could come home for a short while, but it will be about two-and-one-half years before I will reach the States again.

My first Chinese port was Hongkong, B.C.C. It was a British Gov. ruled port, and I saw lots of British, French, and Scotch soldiers and sailors there. It was a splendid sight that few of us can witness. But to witness such sights we have to sacrifice lots. The Scotch soldiers wear short kilts and heavy shoes with a little cocked hat with a ribbon down the back. I am going to get one before I return home. There are thousands and thousands of Chinamen there. They sleep in the streets and everywhere. Silk and jewelry are very cheap there.

Well, things are pretty hot over here right now. Not the weather, but the International Affairs. Since Holland has been invaded, Japan has made a few likely gestures toward us.

The port in which we are now tied up in, is a port taken over by the Japanese long ago. There are lots of Japanese soldiers and sailors here. We have to salute the Japanese officers, and some of the men do not like it very much. They are pretty rude toward the American sailors once in a while. They have the authority to strike you if they care to. Hardly ever are there such cases, though.

I don't know where we are going from here. I simply know that the Phillippine Islands are our winter port, and China is our Summer port; so I guess we'll be around the China coastal region until winter. Then we'll go back to Manila, P. I.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

We see British freighters coming and going each day out of the port. They carry thousands of Chinese refugees up and down the coast from port to port.

It gets pretty lonesome over here. I don't go ashore very much, and there are only a few radios on ship, and it gets pretty monotonous sitting around. Be sure and write me all the news. I haven't received a letter since I left San Diego, Cal.

Love To All,
Bruce Young

Friday July 12 AIRPLANE FACTORY LIKELY TO LOCATE IN GRAND PRAIRIE

Prospects loomed bright this week for Grand Prairie to secure an $8,000,000 aircraft factory to be built by the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation of California. The plant would be located west of Hensley Field near Mountain Creek Lake. In a telephone conversation with Mayor Turner of Grand Prairie yesterday, he told the Arlington Journal that they would probably know within 10 days if the plant is to be located there.

For the past month the Dallas Chamber of Commerce with the support of Grand Prairie has been working untiringly on the possibility of getting the plant located within the neighboring city. In the event the factory is a reality, those persons making up the 5,000 families having children of college age will give serious consideration to living in Arlington and enrolling their children in NTAC.

Sea planes and army planes will be built for release to the government. It gives promise as being one of the major projects to have centered in this section of Texas in many years.

The family came to Texas in December, 1872, and settled in Smith County, northeast of Tyler. There were six sons and two daughters in this family, and of these only one sister is now living, Mrs. J. A. King of Gilmer, Texas.

Friday July 26 Letter Received By Commissioner From Harry Weeks

July 16, 1940

Mr. Forrest Green
Commissioner City of Arlington
Arlington, Texas
Dear Sir:

Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of July 9, which makes some reference to the brick yard property on the East edge of town. You asked if I had any suggestions as to what can be done.

In this connection, please be advised that for some time we have been conducting some zoological experiments on this property in an effort to produce a superior breed of frogs. I am sure that you realize that there is a great deal of waste material in the ordinary bull frog considered from an economic standpoint and as an edible product. I think you will agree with me that it is practically the only meat article served upon the table in which the legs are considered edible. Now, for some time past we have been conducting experiments on the property above referenced to an effort to produce a bull frog whose breast is edible and would compare favorably with chicken or turkey breast. Of course this is a long and tedious work, but we consider it eminently worthwhile. One of our chief difficulties has been to develop the breast of the frog without interfering with his vocal qualities.

We thought we had just about surmounted our difficulties and were on the road to success when we learned that the Mayor of your city, without any authority whatsoever, had practically emptied our experimental station and had set us back several years in this work with which we had hoped to give Arlington a major industry.

If our reports are correct, the Mayor's work has been carried on to such an extent that the mosquito situation should be solved. The only thing that remains to be solved, as I see the matter, is an attempt to remedy the damage which the Mayor has unwittingly done to our experiments in frog culture.

Yours very truly,
Harry C. Weeks

ARLINGTON JOURNAL, PIONEER TEXAS PAPER, CELEBRATES 41st ANNIVERSARY

With this issue The Arlington Journal begins its 41st year of continuance service to the people of Arlington and surrounding communities. It was not until 1899 that The Arlington Journal was established, but Arlington probably had its newspaper when Willis Timmerman began printing a paper here in 1893. Timmerman was also the postmaster and mayor of the village of Arlington.

His paper was known as The Arlington Democrat and it was published upstairs in the building where Terry Drug Store is located. It was a typical paper of the late 1890's—temptetous (?), radical in politics, and with an editorial policy that even became dangerous at times.

Later the paper was edited by John McGraw who came to Arlington from Dallas in 1896. He was a Republican and during a heated political campaign, an editorial appeared in the paper denouncing Bryan and his free silver policy which so aroused the ire of several hundred Arlington citizens that they visited his office and ordered him to leave town. McGraw fearlessly met the mob and told them that he had no intention of leaving town and that his press and paper would never go under such circumstances. The mob moved on and McGraw continued publication of the paper for about one year.

With the discontinuation of The Democrat, Arlington was without a newspaper for a short while. In 1899, The Arlington Journal was established by George A. Byus who had formerly worked for McGraw. Byus had discussed the establishment of a paper with J. I. Carter and it was on his advice that he moved an old Washington hand press from a little village north of Mineral Wells to Arlington and set up a printing office in a small shed for which he paid $2.50 per month. He later sold to William and Layton Stanberry who published the paper until 1907, when it was sold to W. A. Bowen. Under the Stanberry ownership, the office was located where the City Hall now is. After Mr. Bowen's death in 1920 the paper was edited under Knowles and Hill, G. J. Glenn and a Dr. Barnes successively. In 1924 N. O. Carter became editor and in 1925 The Journal was sold to J. S. and F. L. Perry who later sold the paper to their brother, S. Luther Perry.

The Arlington Journal has grown from a 4 page sheet, published on a hand press, to an 8 and 10 page paper, published on electric high speed presses. The circulation has kept pace with the growth of the town and has grown to a large one that covers the Arlington territory in a thorough and efficient manner.

"Pouch" Is Missed By Host Friends

"Pouch" who last Monday went to his "happy hunting ground" would be glad to know that he is already greatly missed and his going away is mourned by all who knew him. His daily habits were pleasant ones. Liking people as "Pouch" did, he spent most of his time down town among his business friends. His morning beat started with a visit to the Luttrell Grocery where the boys were generous with food. While so close took time for a visit next door, usually making it in time to greet Wink Brown, Ray Luttrell, and G. W. Johnson. In order, he made his round of pop-calls on schedule. "Pouch" made his way to the McKnight Grocery where water was his standing order. Having a sweet tooth his appearance at Coulter's meant candy and in-between snacks.

"Pouch" played no favorites—his friendly jestures proved he was Arlington's favorite and perhaps best beloved dog. Jack Mauldin was another who grew accustomed to his daily visits. If Jack were busy when "Pouch" called and failed to give him his bar of candy, he was reminded with a gentle stroke around the ankles. A change meant little to him...he kept up with such minor things. When the new white frame home on W. Abram became the new abode of Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Hancock and daughter, Rachel, "Pouch" just hunted until he found the right house. Each morning it was his pleasure to walk to the office with Mrs. Hancock. Women were given a slight preference, from close observation. He really belonged to Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Terry and son, Victor, but many others enjoyed a mutual claim. He was 5 ½ years old and had belonged to the Terry family since birth.

"Pouch's" grave adds another to the dog cemetery which is near the Christian Church.

Friday September 6 UNWISE and OTHERWISE By S. Luther Perry

A dozen or more Arlington business men met Wednesday evening and discussed possible location of the 451 German sailors of the scuttled German ship Columbus at Arlington Downs and it was decided that Arlington does not want these sailors that close to this city. Word was accordingly sent to Ft. Worth to that effect. ***

The above action will definitely prevent their locating in this vicinity because the government has decided that if any city selected for the quarters for the interned men does not want them located in that area, no effort will be made to establish them there. ***

That policy was adopted to avoid possible local criticism or resentment over the location of the Nazi ship crew and it would seem that it is a wise policy. ***

Many complimentary things are being said about the work of Earl Gardner who is getting the street's in shape for hot topping. Earl knows his work and takes great pride in seeing that it is done just right which pleases the city officials very much and is getting streets built that will last for years to come.

What's the Answer

By Edward Finch

From where did the expression "Hobson's Choice" come?

Tobias Hobson was an English livery stable keeper. From his famous stables he hired out horses by the day or hour. In hiring a horse you could look them all over and make your own selection but by hook or crook, Hobson would contrive to get you to take the one nearest the door. As that horse was sent out the rest were moved up and the next customer would be inveigled into taking Hobson's choice of horses while being blarneyed into thinking he had made his own. It became the joke of the town and the expression came down to us meaning a choice with but one course to choose.

Doc Pierce Maintains A High Record During 20 Years He Has Headed Arlington Water Works

Twenty years ago the 19th day of June G. C. Pierce, city water engineer who is better known as "Doc," started working for the city. During that time he has helped install every piece of machinery that has gone into the city water plant. He has worked with the machinery and treated it as carefully as if it were a baby. Up until the last year his job has been an 18 hour day one, and many a time he has worked night and day with a broken piece of machinery so that the high standard of efficiency which he had maintained in the water department would not be lowered in any way. Never in Arlington's history has there been a serious shortage of water, and for this Doc Pierce is due a large share of credit.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

Up until last year when the new electric pump was purchased by the City five oil burning pumps were used to do the work that this one pump does. The new pump is a beauty, especially when compared to the five huge grimy, complicated looking old pumps which are housed in the pumping house. The new electric pump which is 100 horsepower pumps 450 gallons of water a minute, as much as was pumped by the combined 420 horsepower of the old type pumps.

The largest of the five wells at the city water plant is being pumped at a 500 foot depth. This well is 900 ft. deep and has been pumped for the past 9 years. When questioned about the lasting of the water supply, Doc replied that there is a 60 foot water strata and that continuous pumping has lowered the water head only 17 feet in the 20 years that he has been there so the water supply will last indefinitely. The water comes from the ground 99.2 percent pure.

The other wells are pumped once a week to keep them clean. With the use of all pumps around 750 gallons a minute can be pumped, more than ample to meet any emergency that should arise. So good is the water standard maintained that there has never yet been a fire in Arlington that has effected resident's water supply in the slightest degree.

A 40 horsepower booster pump pumps the water into the main at the rate of 12,000 gallons a minute. The water tower at the plant is 130 feet tall and holds 100,000 gallons of water. It is always kept completely full. Besides the tower there are two reservation tanks, one holding 135,000 gallons and another 67,000 gallons which are kept filled.

When Doc started at the water plant he had one 75 horsepower oil engine and a 50 horsepower drilling pump to supply the city with its water. Later a 100 horsepower engine was added. Ten years later came the addition of a 240 horsepower engine. In the pumping house stands $19,500 worth of pumping machinery that has served the city faithfully through the years. Just as every business has changed through the past 20 years, so has the water plant business. Today $5,300 worth of pumps do the work that $19,500 worth did in the past. Doc Pierce has worked hard through the years and has served Arlington faithfully and well. Here is a man who loves machinery and truly appreciates the modern equipment which has been installed at the water plant. A visit to the Arlington water plant would make anyone appreciate the water which comes so easily and abundantly.

Friday September 13 Coyote Lassoed By Pipeline

The strangest method of trapping coyotes ever disclosed has been found in Texas! And there is a picture of the event to prove it! A pipe line recently broke on the Howell lease near San Diego in Duval County. Force of the explosion caused a piece of pipe to curl in a circle—and in this circle, held so tightly it would not escape, was a coyote. It has not been determined whether the pipe choked the coyote to death or the force of the explosion killed it, according to J. L. C. Beaman, newspaper owner in San Diego, who ran a picture of this strange occurrence. It is said the pipe was twisted so tightly around the coyote's neck, and with no tool marks on it, that it would have been impossible for anyone to have played a practical joke.

Uncle Of Arthur T. Bridges Dies

Arthur T. Bridges was recently called to Rusk County, Texas, to attend the funeral of his uncle, R. L. Bridges of Harris County. Mr. Bridges had reared a family of five devoted children who, with his wife, survived him. He was in ill health for several years, suffered much, and realized the "time of his departure" was near. Shortly before passing away he gave the following farewell message to his family and friends and requested that it be read at his funeral. Because of the beautiful and forceful testimonial it contains to the sustaining power of Eternal Love though one walks "through the valley of the shadow of Death" it is passed on in this way to those interested:

"Wife, Children, Relatives, Friends:

Grieve not that I have gone on before. Death was conquered for me by my Saviour, and I share in that victory. It has no terror for me. Christ has thus said to me, 'well done' and I am now enjoying my reward in my Heavenly Home. Be very sure that I am there, for I know in whom I have trusted and am persuaded that He has kept that which I have committed unto Him. I am with Christ, my father, mother, and others who have gone on before.

"To my faithful wife, I want to say that your faithfulness, love and courage have been my staff and comfort. You never wavered; my love is yours throughout Eternity.

To my children and their families—you are my justification for living, I've seen you grow in grace until I believe all of you are saved. Persevere and meet me over the river.

To my other relatives—I have always been proud to be one of you. In our family, there has been a tradition of striving toward the Light of God. In my feeble way I've tried to help carry that Light. Now I leave it to you to carry on. For me, the Light has never grown dim. In trouble, in hardship, in adversity, in suffering, it shone steadily on. I know that as I cross over the river, treading surely over the bridge built by Grace through faith, Eternal Love will still hold the Light for me.

I testify to the sufficiency of Christ's love. Truly it has grown sweeter each step of the way.

When you come to join me, I'll be there with outstretched arms to greet you."

H. SNYDER FIRE BUG MANIAC, ARRESTED BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES

The City of Arlington will receive a credit from the State Fire Insurance Commission on its fire insurance loss as the result of the arrest of Harold Snyder, 36, fire bug maniac. T. F. Justiss, Deputy State Fire Commissioner, and E. L. Mitchell, national underwriter who investigates arson cases, were in Arlington the first of the week probing the case.

According to Mitchell, Arlington will receive some credit, and fire insurance loss between now and March will determine the city's key rate.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

Snyder had been under observation by the Arlington police department and after the fire at the Caton Fluffy Ruffle Factory Saturday night, Chief of Police Cribbs had Snyder picked up for questioning. The arrest was made by Linton Lovell and Ferman Jordan.

After being questioned, he made a statement that he started two fires Saturday night and that he also set fire to two Grogan feed barns, to the Berachah Auditorium and to the high school athletic equipment room last Christmas Eve. The high school fire caused damage estimated at about $5,000.

Snyder also said that he had set fire to eight residences in Hico during the time that he lived there and reports from Hico have showed that there was an unusually large number of fires during Snyder's 3 year residence there.

Authorities have not yet received a report from Illinois officials concerning the statement of Snyder that he started a fire there 21 years ago in which his mother burned to death. According to Snyder, he and his mother disagreed on the type of clothes that he was to wear to school one morning. He said that he went into a rage and that his mother was standing near an open fire and that he threw gasoline all over her and that the blaze caught her clothing. Snyder had spoken to people in Arlington several times about the first (fact ?) that he had been in Illinois when his home burned.

Snyder said that he set fire to the Caton factory Saturday night because he was mad at the Catons since he had tried to buy a 5c bottle of turpentine in their store that day, and they had told him that they had only 10c bottles. He said that he thought that they could have acted nicer and so he swiped a bottle of turpentine from the store and then used it to set the factory on fire. About $150 worth of damage was done to the factory.

Snyder who had been living in Arlington for about 18 months was a sign painter and where he stayed at the Wilson mattress factory were found several sketches of the interior of the Notre Dame Cathedral and a mural of the Last Supper. The sketches were accurately and beautifully drawn representing much painstaking work.

According to Police Chief Cribbs no list was found of places that Snyder intended to burn next and he made no statement about any fires planned for the future.

Wick Fowler, Orange, chief investigator for the special committee on un-American activities, and Sgt. Jim Lane of the Texas Highway patrol who is a special investigator for the Dies committee, Monday questioned Snyder who speaks German and English equally well. He is of German extraction, but was born in this country.

After Dr. William L. Howell conducted a mental examination of Snyder Tuesday and a lunacy complaint was filed against him by Asst. District Attorney Harry Ward.

Friday September 20 Hico Mayor Writes Regarding Arrest Of Former Resident

The following letter was received by Mayor W. F. Altman and Chief Ott Cribbs from Lawrence Lane, mayor of Hico, in regard to the arrest of Harold Snyder, confessed arsonist, who formerly lived in Hico:

Honorable W. F. Altman
Mayor City of Arlington
Chief Ott Cribbs
Arlington, Texas
Dear Friends:

We want to thank you from the bottom of our heart for the good work you have done in cracking the fire bug, our former citizen, who married a woman here and lived with her more than a year and has left her about the same length of time. We never did suspect him of any mischief but at times he seemed unbalanced somewhat.

We find after checking back we had about the number of fires stated in the paper.

If he names the fires we would like to know the one as a matter to clear the cloud from innocent parties that have been perhaps wrongly looked upon.

Mayor Altman, Chief Ott Cribbs, if we can be of any service to you command us, thank you for your splendid work and if men like you both did not hold office many of these kind would soon be in the majority.

With the kindest personal regards, I am,
Yours Truly, Lawrence Lane

Friday October 4 Mrs. A. H. Copeland Life Long Resident of Tarrant Co. Dies

Funeral services were conducted at 3:30 p.m. Thursday for Mrs. Eleanor Watson Copeland, wife of the late A. H. Copeland, who died at her home in Watson community Wednesday morning. Mrs. Copeland who would have been 80 years old Nov. 23, was born in Watson community, four miles northeast of Arlington.

Last rites were conducted by Dr. L. R. Hogan, pastor of the West Fork Presbyterian Church where the services were held. Dr. Hogan was assisted by Rev. John H. Patterson, pastor of the Arlington Presbyterian Church, Dr. L. C. Collier of the Forrest Hill Presbyterian Church, Dr. Floyd Poe, pastor of City Temple in Dallas, and Rev. Hoyt Boles, pastor of the Ft. Worth Hemphill Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Copeland who was a civic and church leader in her community led an active life until in the summer when her health began to fail. Six weeks ago she was ordered to bed and she had been seriously ill for the last month.

She was the oldest child of P. A. and Mary Jane Watson. It was prior to the Civil War days that she was born and she had the care of a good old negro mammy. She saw her two brothers, John and Jim Watson, join the Confederate army and she heard the echoes of the worries of the family over them during those dark days.

Schools in this section were limited during her childhood, but she was an avid student with a remarkable memory and she was a champion speller. Throughout the years she had read widely and had always kept abreast of the times.

It was on July 29, 1879, when she was not quite 19, that she became the bride of A. H. Copeland, who had moved to the Watson community from Tennessee two years before. In February, 1871 (1881?), the couple moved to the farm which was given them by her father. Their seven children were born there and the Copelands spent their lives on the farm. The Copelands celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary in 1929 and Mr. Copeland died eight months later.

Mrs. Copeland was the first to volunteer her services in any movement for the betterment of the community, and for years her home was the unofficial community center. She taught the primary class in the West Fork Presbyterian Sunday School for 40 years; she helped to organize the Improvement Club of that community and served as president for a number of years, and she was the first president of the County Home Demonstration Club in the Watson community. She was widely known for her active work on the Home Demonstration County Council. Thruout her life she was an energetic personality and her reply to those who told her that she was working too hard was, "More things rust out than wear out." She was especially fond of flowers and chickens. Every year the Arlington Garden Club held an all day meeting at her home.

Connelly of Dallas, Mrs. George Wessler of Arlington, Mrs. Ed Bailey of Hamlin, and Mrs. A. B. Post of Ruston, La., and 15 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren. All of her children were with her a part of the time during her final illness.

Honorary pallbearers were the elders and deacons of the West Fork Church. Pallbearers were son-in-laws, J. E. Richards, J. F. Connelly, George H. Wessler, Ed Bailey and A. B. Post, and a grandson, H. W. Reynolds.

RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSN.

TWO KINDS

“There are two kinds of Credit Men on earth today,
(Just two kinds—no more I say),
Not the saint or sinner, for ‘tis well understood,
The good are half bad and the bad half good.
Not the rich nor the poor for to count a man’s wealth
You must first know the state of his conscience and health.
Not the happy or sad, for the swift flying years,
Bring to each man his laughter and to each man his tears.
No: the two kinds of people on earth I mean
Are the people who lift and the people who lean,
And were e’re you go, you’ll find the world’s masses
Are always divided into just these two classes,
And, oddly enough, you’ll find, too, I ween,
There’s only one lifter to twenty who lean!
In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of over-taxed lifters who toil down the road,
Or are you a leaner, who makes others bear
YOUR part of the labor, and worry and care?”

Seguin Paper Gives Life Of Lillard

The following write-up of Lee A. Lillard appeared in the Seguin Enterprise last Friday. Funeral services were held in Seguin, former home of the Lillards, Monday of last week. The flags over the Seguin Post Office and the Courthouse were flown at half mast for two days.

Many kind hearts were saddened when it became known that Lee A. Lillard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. P. Lillard of Arlington, had passed to his reward in the land beyond the skies. His sudden death, due to a heart attack, was unexpected and a shock to everyone, since he was about his usual duties of the day, and had entertained guests, death overtaking him about 8 p.m. on Sunday evening at his home.

Lee Lillard was born Nov. 26, 1896 at Seguin, Texas. He grew up at old Mill Creek, where he joined the Methodist Church in his youth, attended the schools of that place and in Seguin, was graduated from Carlisle Military Academy, now North Texas Agricultural School in Arlington, and A. & M. College. At 19 he entered officers Training Camp at Camp Stanley, Leon Springs and was commissioned First Lieutenant. He was placed on officers reserve as a Captain at the end of the World War.

On March 24, 1917, he was married to Miss Lucile Thompson of this place and to this happy union were born three children: Ardice, Lee Jr. and John. He was associated with his father in the hog business from his youth and with the family moved to Arlington some twenty

Friday November 1 Family Tradition Is Carried on By E. F. Wilkinson's G-son

Ancestors of E. F. Wilkinson have served in every major war since the American Revolution, and H. D. Phillips, former Dallas Aviation School instructor and grandson of Wilkinson, is carrying on the family tradition by serving as a pilot in the RAF.

Jonathan C. Taylor, great-grandfather of Wilkinson, served in the first war in America under George Washington, and his son served in the War of 1812. An uncle of Wilkinson's was killed in action in the Civil War. A nephew who served in the World War liked the army so well that he is still in it and is stationed at San Antonio at the present time.

Phillips who is now a first officer of the British Overseas Airways who went to England supposedly to ferry RAF planes across the Atlantic is seeing more action than such flyers might be expected to encounter.

Following are excerpts from a recent letter received in Dallas from Phillips:

"I have succeeded in passing on all four types of planes and now have been selected to check all American pilots out on twins as they arrive.

"I have flown the fastest and the nastiest and some things so big they make a DC-3 (the type used by many commercial airlines) look sick.

"Earl Ortman and myself are returning to Canada quite soon for another hop across. (Since receipt of the letter Ortman, California air racer, was shot down and killed by Nazi fighter planes.)

"I am unable at this time to tell you anything of what I am doing, but you can rest assured its plenty hot and no play. The shooting is fine here, but, so far, five ducks is the limit. Ortman is doing quite well for himself here also.

"We have seen so much of Jerry that he's like passing a DC-3 back home. If you're in a Spitfire or Hurricane, stop and give Jerry a little business. It's really quite simple. Otherwise, be on your way.

"I flew within four miles the 25th of sixty Jerrys on a bombing raid and got by O. K. I was in a twin-motored ship with no rear gunner, I don't like the odds—it's not healthy over here."

Phillips was sent to Canada, thence to England, through the Clayton Knight Committee.

JOURNAL TO PUBLISH GREATER ARLINGTON EDITION HERE SOON

Work has been underway the past three weeks on the gathering of material, pictures, and advertising copy for the publication of a "Greater Arlington Edition." Material featured in this edition will cover history and progress made through all the churches, lodges, clubs, schools, NTAC, civic organizations, and general activities of Arlington and its trade area.

These stories will be written by individuals who are better informed on the respective subjects. It is estimated that there will be sixty or more of these "by-line" stories giving the writers credit for their work.

The High School Parent-Teachers Association with Mrs. F. H. Wadley, the president in charge of the historical committee, is assembling the stories. The ladies will be responsible for stories written especially for the edition. Any cooperation given them in this task will be greatly appreciated by all concerned as this edition will justify any effort spent.

Since there has never been an edition of this kind published in Arlington, no effort will be spared in making it creditable in all respects.

Capt. R. Adams Leads Mass Flight Of U.S. Bombers To Britain

Captain Ralph E. Adams, husband of the former Mildred Pilant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pilant, W. Abram, this week commanded the first mass delivery flight of trans-Atlantic American-made bombers sold to Britain's Royal Air Force.

Captain Adams, who was educated in Dallas public schools, is the son of Mrs. M. E. Adams, veteran director of the Parkland Hospital Nurses' home. He left a position with the Blevins Aircraft Corporation of Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 25 to accept a post with the Canadian R.A.F. Since that time he has received intensive training and was chosen from among numerous other capable American flyers to lead the bombers flight across the North Atlantic.

Tuesday morning his wife and mother received a cablegram from "somewhere in England" in which Capt. Adams said: "Am fine—will be home soon." A few minutes later special delivery letters arrived, accompanied by an explanatory note written by a Canadian pilot who said he had "picked up the letter in Newfoundland to forward them to Adams' wife and mother.

Born in Emory, Tex., Captain Adams served in the U.S. Marine Corps in Nicaragua when only a youth in his teens. Recently, he had been an ace first pilot with Delta Airlines.

Capt. Adams is the father of little Carole Adams, infant granddaughter of the Pilants, and niece of Mrs. Happy King, sister of Mrs. Adams.

Italian Losses

Reports from London also told of a smashing bombing attack upon Italy's navy, anchored in the Mediterranean port of Taranto. British planes operating from an aircraft carrier were reported to have put out of action two battleships, two cruisers and two auxiliary craft and severely damaged a third battleship. Aircraft were used in the attack, according to

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

London, because the harbor is too heavily fortified for surface craft to approach it. While the Italians described these reports as "fantastic," if they are true, it means that English domination of the Mediterranean is assured for some time to come. The vessels sunk or damaged represent about one-half of Italy's full fighting strength of large vessels. (The Japanese noted the success of this attack on Taranto harbor and planned their attack on Pearl Harbor.)

Lt. Marshall Camp In "Mercy Flight"

"Mercy flight brings soldier to C. Z. Hospital," is the heading of the following story that appeared in the Panama press early this month giving the story of a flight made by Lt. Marshall Camp, son of Mrs. T. J. Camp of Arlington.

"Lincoln W. Allen, Private in Company M of the Fifth Infantry now stationed at the Rio Hato Training Center on temporary duty, was rushed to Gorgas Hospital by plane from Rio Hato when he became ill suddenly with what Army doctors believed to be an attack of acute appendicitis. At 1:30 this morning a plane piloted by Lt. Marshall Camp, took off from the Rio Hato Airdrome with the passenger and arrived over Albrook Field about twenty minutes later.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

"Lo(w) clouds and an early morning haze made the landing lights on the plane ineffective and parachute flares dropped from the craft failed to light the field sufficiently to make a landing safe. Within a few minutes, however, flood lights on the field were turned on and the plane was able to land.

"Allen was in an ambulance and on his way to the hospital at 2:15—just forty-five minutes after leaving Rio Hato."

Lt. Camp writes his mother that he made this trip the quickest that had ever been done, and it really gave him a thrill to "open it wide" in the small hours of the night.

The fighter at the end of the line tripped the fisherman and caused him to fall down a 30-foot embankment. He suffered a fractured leg. Companions took Dr. Wentz back to Harlingen for treatment.

ELECTRIC CO. HAS UNUSUAL STORY OF PROGRESS BEGINNING ABOUT 1904 WITH POWER FROM A CORN SHELLER

First Full Time Service Given City About 1913

The story of electric service in the city of Arlington is an unusual story that can be matched by few other cities of Texas. From an insignificant and unique beginning, electric light and power service in Arlington has been improved through the years until this city now has the same high quality of service that is supplied to the largest cities of the State.

But this wasn't always the case. Like many other cities and towns that got their first electric service from ice plants, from gins or other plants which have steam engines, Arlington got its first electricity along about 1904 from a corn-shelling plant. This plant, owned by A. W. Collins, was quite an industry at one time. At dusk, when the day's work of shelling corn was finished, the belt of the steam engine was switched over to an electric dynamo to supply lights for about 50 downtown stores, offices, and a few homes.

For fuel, the corn shelling plant burned cobs and shucks, but in the season of the year when the pile of cobs ran low, the fireman mixed lignite coal with the refuse from the sheller and produced the steam for the engine. The old corn shelling plant was located on the creek close to South and Center streets, just south of where the old light and ice plant was located.

This information was obtained from Theo Huffman, who has been continuously employed by the company since 1905, and from Sam F. Wine, manager of the company since 1916. They are the oldest employees of the company in point of service and have personal knowledge of the growth of the electric business in Arlington.

But electric service in Arlington in 1904 wasn't like the electric service of today. Their electricity was used only for lighting, and the plant started operating at dusk and ran until 11 o'clock on week days. On Saturday, the plant chugged along until midnight. In the winter time, the plant started early in the morning, around 4:30 to 5 o'clock, and ran until daylight so that early risers would have electric light to dress by.

There were no electric meters in Arlington in those days. Customers paid so much for each light they had in their home or place of business. These were small lamps, too, giving not much more light than an oil lamp. But the electric lights were more convenient, and didn't smoke, so they were worth the higher cost as compared to the price of kerosene lamps.

From this simple beginning, the electric business in Arlington began to develop. In 1906 A. W. Collins, with W. C. Weeks, W. M. Dugan and Col. Spruance invested $10,000 to provide Arlington with a larger electric plant. They built an addition to the corn shelling plant to house a new generating unit and extended wires to parts of the residential area. The plant operated at 220 volts, direct current, and all lamp bulbs were 220 volt.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

The first full-time electric service enjoyed by Arlington citizens was made available in 1913 when the electric system was purchased by the Northern Texas Traction Company, whose high-power lines ran through Arlington to supply power for the Dallas-Fort Worth interurban. The traction company rebuilt the electric distribution lines in the city. They supplied electricity at 25 cycle alternating current, 115 volts. The old 220-volt light bulbs wouldn't burn with this lower voltage, so the company exchanged new 115-volt bulbs for the old 220 volt bulbs.

With high-line electric service available, Arlington for the first time had sufficient power for local industries. The 25-cycle service, though ideal for interurban and street car operation, and also for operation of electric motors in factories, produced a continuous flickering in electric lights that many citizens will remember. However, the full-time service enabled customers to use electric appliances, fans, motors and other electrical equipment.

The first large user of electric power in Arlington was the Arlington Journal. Col. W. A. Bowen owned the paper at that time and a large motor was installed in 1914 to run the big press.

Arlington began to grow rapidly and the traction company built a new high line into Arlington in 1926 that brought in 60-cycle electric service. This type of electric service eliminated the flicker in lights, but created a new problem. The company spent a lot of time and money in exchanging fans, motors and other motor-driven appliances with customers, taking the old 25-cycle motors and putting in 60 cycle motors.

The Texas Electric Service Company bought the electric properties from the traction company in 1930, and again the electric distribution system was rebuilt to bring it up-to-date and to increase the dependability of electric service. The last portions of the old 25-cycle lines were replaced with 60-cycle service and Arlington at last had the standard type of electric service.

Manager Sam Wine recalls that when he came to Arlington in 1916, there were only 270 electric customers, both inside and outside the city limits. Today, the area around Arlington is criss-crossed with power lines of the Texas Electric Service Company, serving farms and rural homes.

While electric service in Arlington has been made more dependable and modern, the cost of electricity has gone steadily downward. Prior to 1917 electricity cost 15 cents a kilowatt-hour, and the minimum bill was $1.50. In 1917, the rate was dropped to 12 cents a kilowatt-hour for the first 25 kilowatt-hours, and the balance of the kilowatt-hours at 10 cents each. The minimum was $1.00.

Today, electric rates in Arlington start at the top price of 5 cents a kilowatt-hour, after the minimum has been used, and drop as low as 3 cents a kilowatt-hour as more electricity is used.

Arlington today has ample electric power for industrial growth, as is indicated by the several firms which are large users of electric power. The City water works, the Southern Ornamental Iron Works, the gin, NTAC, the feed mill and other local concerns use power from the lines of the Texas Electric Service Company, which has built its system of electric lines so as to keep well ahead of the demand for electric power in Arlington.

The Arlington office of the Texas Electric Service Company is the central office for the operations of the company in an area that includes Handley, Grand Prairie, Dalworth Park, Burleson, Everman, Crowley, Dalworthington Gardens, and other towns and communities in the southeastern part of Tarrant County and the western part of Dallas County along the route of the old interurban line.

In addition to Wine there are five employees of the electric company in the Arlington office, including Miss Ruth Butler, secretary; O. B. Hooper, salesman; R. H. Houston, chief clerk; Earl Scott and Theo Huffman, service men. ***

Friday December 20 Additional Copies Of Special Edition Still Available

Extra copies of the special historical and progress, 26 page, edition of the Arlington Journal was published this week are obtainable at the Arlington Journal office. The edition contains a complete history of the various organizations, churches, and City of Arlington, and a general history of the happenings in Arlington.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

The various articles are written by Arlington people who are familiar with the history of the clubs and each writer is to be commended for the splendid story that he wrote. Much time was spent preparing the stories and they will be used as references for many years to come.

Many readers have called the Journal and said how much they have enjoyed and appreciated the edition, while other readers have had extra copies mailed to friends and relatives in other cities. Already one college student is using much of the material in it for his thesis on Arlington.

Among the many nice expressions received about the special edition was the following from former school superintendent J. A. Kooken:

Dear Mr. Perry:

"I have read the pages of the Special Edition and I am sure that this special is the best that has ever been issued in Arlington.

"The content gives a very correct history of the schools, churches, city and various business and community organizations. The pages of the special reflect progress in every field.

"The history of the evolution of the public schools as gleaned from the secretary's minutes through the years is the best I have ever seen. Mr. J. M. Houston did an excellent piece in writing this history."

Sincerely, J. A. Kooken.

Friday December 20 Mrs. Mary Trusdale

This week witnessed the close of a very interesting and useful life, when Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Trusdale passed away at the Eastern Star Home here in Arlington. She was so quiet and unassuming that few realized what a rich life she had lived.

She was born in England at Manchester. And though she had been in America for many years, and loved America as her home, her heart often turned to England and her own people in these troubled days. She had a sister, a nurse, and several nephews in the war, and was naturally greatly disturbed in their behalf.

For several months she had been seriously ill and unable to see her friends or attend her church. She was an active member of the Presbyterian church and as long as her health would permit a regular attendant in the Loyalty Sunday School class of which she was a member.

Miss Cora Posey, worthy grand secretary of the Order of the Eastern Star of Texas gives these interesting facts about her varied and useful life both in England and in America:

Mrs. Trusdale served ten years as Governess in the family of the Arch Bishop of Canterbury. During this time she traveled widely with the children. She made six trips to America, on her last trip (the eleventh time to cross the Atlantic Ocean) it was understood that she was to remain in America, which she did; remaining in Galveston while the rest of the Arch Bishop's party sailed for England. She married soon after this and has lived in America ever since. It was interesting to hear her speak of her childhood's home in England which she described as a small stone house with very thick walls, which was perched high on a cliff overlooking the sea.

Mrs. Trusdale was initiated into the Order of the Eastern Star by Mizpah Chapter No. 2, Galveston, on May 24, 1921. She later moved to Fort Worth and was affiliated with Keystone Chapter No. 9, on March 25, 1921. She was a very active member of this chapter and filled many different stations in the chapter. For some time she was also active in the Sunshine Circle and had a number of small girls under her direction. One of these girls was Ginger Rogers of whom Mrs. Trusdale said, "Her little feet kept time to the rhythm of her heart even in those pinafore days." Another of that group was the little Ruth Googins who is now Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt.

Sorrow came into her life, her health gave way and it became necessary for her to enter the Eastern Star Home. She brought to her new method of life a high courage, refusing to give way to sorrow, she bravely began readjusting her life to her surroundings. She loved flowers and took over the care of the rose gardens and shrubs of the Home and made them her constant care until failing health forced her to keep to her room.

GOOD WILL TOURIST TELLS OF DEFENSE PREPARATIONS ON SOUTH PACIFIC ISLES

Clem J. Randau, vice president and general business manager of the United Press Association, was one of the party of newspapermen who made the recent good will aerial tour via Pan-American Airways of Australia and New Zealand. In a letter to the members of the party he records his impressions of conditions and preparations for defense in the countries. The letter follows:

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

I have just returned from a six weeks' aerial tour of Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, the Dutch East Indies, Hong Kong and Manila. Since our party was the guest of Pan-American Airways, the New Zealand, Australia, and the Dutch East Indies governments, we had opportunities to see and talk with many of the leading personalities in the South Pacific area.

In this letter I would like to outline my outstanding impressions based on what I saw and heard.

The people of Australia and New Zealand dominions do not admit the possibility of defeat in the war—even in the more serious and candid conversations. They are extremely busy with their war effort.

During five days in Australia which included visits to Sydney, Melbourne, Canberra, Brisbane, Gladstone, Townsville and Darwin, I had occasion to talk with leaders of the army and air force, most of the important newspaper publishers in those cities, quite a few top flight government officials and I heard them frequently express their desire to co-operate more fully with the United States.

Works Closely With Australia

The New Zealanders are working closely with Australia and the London government.

The Australian army and government leaders admitted even greater effort was necessary to arouse their people to participate in war work. One apparent contributing cause to what appeared to a casual visitor as a certain lethargy is that the populace gets only British censored versions of the news, and hence a one-sided, and incomplete picture.

Australians view the possibility of a direct attack on their territory as rather remote, but are preparing against such an eventuality.

One airplane factory is now turning out 10 planes a week. The planes are of all-service type, carry a pilot and machine gunners and will be used largely for attack and dive bombing. The model is a slight revision of a well known American plane. With(in) six months production capacity will be doubled.

Most of these planes will be used for home defense whereas some of them are being shipped to Africa and India and through the Suez Canal, to fight for Britain in the Mediterranean.

A number of munitions factories are working at full capacity, primarily turning out aerial bombs and shells for light artillery.

Training of soldiers, air men and home defense corps is going on throughout Australia. Coast defenses are being built up, but Australia is being used mainly as a training and supply center for men and munitions for the British war effort in other sections of the world.

Dutch East Indies

The Dutch East Indies, comprising a remarkably rich colonial empire of some 70,000,000 inhabitants, are very well prepared for defense against any invasion. Airports throughout the more important islands of Java, Sumatra, Borneo, Celebes, and New Guinea are already well equipped with bombproof shelters, barbed wire and concrete obstructions and anti-aircraft guns.

The government of the Dutch East Indies, under a governor general appointed by Queen Wilhelmina, is intensely loyal to the Netherlands government in London. The native population seems wholeheartedly in sympathy with the existing status and there was no evidence of any unrest.

The Javanese are a Mohammedan race, apparently religiously and racially closer to the Chinese than the Japanese.

Army, navy and air force officials with whom I talked seemed unanimously of the opinion that the Dutch East Indies could resist any invader for a considerable period of time. This is due largely to its competent air force, equipped with American fighting and bombing planes, well trained and compact army plus a considerable fleet of submarines, destroyers, and cruisers.

Of utmost importance to their defense is the fact that the waters surrounding the most important East Indian islands are shallow and studded with coral reefs. The designated regular shipping channels can easily be mined. Thus, an invading force would be subject to devastating attack from the air and submarines.

THE ARLINGTON JOURNAL, Arlington, Texas. 1940

The Dutch officials fear economic pressure from Japan. A Japanese mission of 20, headed by a cabinet minister accompanied by 75 newspapermen, arrived in Batavia just prior to our visit.

This mission had as its announced purpose, the looking over of production facilities for oil, rubber, tin, rice, etc., but it becomes immediately apparent, according to the Dutch officials that the demands of Japanese would go far beyond normal trade relations. Hence the proceedings did not move rapidly and the last word indicates that negotiations are still stymied.

Preparations for defense are far more apparent in Java, Borneo, and other islands than in Australia and New Zealand. Here golf courses and parks have been converted into air-raided shelters, machine gun and anti-aircraft emplacements surrounded all the cities. In Borneo, oil wells, refineries and storage centers have been mined, ready to be blown up in event of attack.

Hong Kong and China

In Hong Kong it was apparent that the British are preparing at least perfunctorily for an attack. Machine gun and artillery emplacements are seen everywhere.

There are several million Chinese refugees in Hong Kong being fed primarily on rice, through an arrangement between the British and Japanese governments which permits the British to import a limited food supply. Even so, the plight of the Chinese refugees is bad, as thousands of the Chinese are sleeping in the streets regularly were told of an epidemic of cholera there.

The general impression I had of Hong Kong is that it could not be defended for long against a major attack. Its chief importance to the British is as a commercial center; hence, it compares in no way with Singapore as an impregnable fortress and naval base.

A considerable majority of the Filipino leaders, I found, appear to regret the independence agreement scheduled to take effect in 1946. I believe it quite likely that president Quizon, the vice president and other leaders will get together on a program within the next couple of years with a view to rescinding the agreement and remaining under the American flag. This desire, I sensed, was due mostly to economic needs and trade relations, although in the background was a fear of invasion which might follow if the Philippines were entirely on their own.

Honolulu Beehive of Activity

Honolulu is a beehive of navy, military and air activity. I heard some discussion of the Japanese problem because of the large proportion of Japanese in the Hawaiian Islands but it was the consensus that this element in the Hawaiian population would be loyal to the United States in any emergency.

My trip, which was something over 33,000 miles, all of it by air, took me over the new Pan-American route to Auckland, New Zealand, and thence to Sydney, Australia, over the Tasman Airways (a subsidiary of the British Imperial Airways). From Sydney we were flown by special charter plane down to the southern part of Australia, with visits to the capital at Canberra, Melbourne and Swan Hill and then up the east coast on Qantas Airlines and across the northern tip of Australia to Darwin.

From Darwin to Bali and Java and later up via Borneo to Manila, we traveled on the KNILM, a Dutch East Indies airline affiliated with the KLM Airlines. From Manila to Hong Kong and back via the Pan-American northern lines. From Manila to Hong Kong route, we returned by clipper via Honolulu to San Francisco.

Clipper Passage Smooth

Travel by Clipper is remarkably smooth, comfortable, and luxurious. The only really rough and uncomfortable air voyage I had was from San Francisco to New York on the way home when we encountered stormy weather.

As much as time permitted I took advantage of the opportunity to look over the United Press bureaus and talk with our staff men about their news coverage problems.

United Press bureaus in Honolulu, Manila and Hong Kong, as well as the correspondents in New Zealand, Australia and through the Dutch East Indies are functioning in superb style. The alertness of our men in the Far East was best shown by our two-day beat on the Rome-Berlin-Tokio pact. The story from Shanghai stood for two full days before it was confirmed from Rome and Berlin. We were hours ahead with the story from Shanghai that Americans had been advised to return home from Japan, China, Manchukuo and Hong Kong.

We serve virtually all of the important newspapers in Hawaii, the Philippines, Hong Kong and, thru the British United Press and Australian Associated Press, the newspapers of Australia and New Zealand. Through the Aneta Agency, functioning in the Dutch East Indies, UP serves virtually all of their newspapers.

The tremendous advantage of living in a country free from censorship was best demonstrated to me upon arrival in Manila. There, for the first time in three weeks, I had an opportunity to see a complete news report. Naturally the news reaching Australia and the Dutch East Indies is heavily censored. Americans living in those countries are kept fairly well informed by listening to short wave broadcasts from the Pacific Coast stations, but even so their information is meager.

For instance, it was four days before our party learned much about the commencement of the bombing raids on London. Scant stories appeared in the newspapers but these were confined largely to reports of invading planes having been driven off.
