Want to show your kid how a REAL picture book gets made? Just check out this title by Mac Barnett! A true depiction of the publishing world from the author’s point of view. Full of humorous details.

Or try this one by Lois Ehlert! Ehlert shares her creative process when creating amazing images for her many picture books.

Kwame Alexander and Melissa Sweet team-up-to-stir-up only the most nostalgic feelings when it comes to exploring a book.

Dan Yaccarino dives into the evolution of storytelling throughout history.

The title by Peter H. Reynolds says it all. This book celebrates the joy of words.

After relishing books, stories, and language, why not sit down and write your own? Kate Messner provides encouragement for the budding writer.
Read about the man who created a revolutionary invention, forever changing the world by making books more accessible.

Trying to figure out another word for something? Jen Bryant reminds us thanks to Peter Mark Roget, we have an easy way to do just that.

Anne Mazer and Ellen Potter help the aspiring young writer find multiple ways to put good words on a page.

Ever wonder what it might be like to be in your very own book series? For these characters created by James Riley, it’s just normal. Until one day, a girl decides to climb out of the book to find her missing father.

Author Django Wexler offers a different take on book traveling when the main character is dared by an arrogant boy to open a book and finds herself in it!

And this title by local author Kimberly Willis Holt explores how the love of books can be shared through the generations of one family.

Discover how books can take a life of their own.
For those who need to put their voice on the page, sometimes all you need is a blank leather notebook...

THE POET X by Elizebeth Acevedo

Or for those who need to secretly share their voice in a zine that starts a revolution in a high school...

MOXIE by Jennifer Mathieu

Or for those who understand what it’s like to become mildly obsessed over fictional life...

FANGIRL by Rainbow Rowell

When your reading obsession becomes an act of defiance...

READING LOLITA IN TEHRAN by Azar Nafisi

In a society where a library has all the power of knowledge and owning a book is forbidden...

INK AND BONE by Rachel Caine

Would you risk your life for the sake of a book?

THE BOOK THIEF by Markus Zusak

Discover how books can transform the soul and society.
Explore the history of books through 300 illustrations collected from libraries around the world.

THE SMITHSONIAN BOOKS OF BOOKS
by Michael Olmert

A tantalizing (and true) story of rare book thievery!

THE MAN WHO LOVED BOOKS TOO MUCH
by Allison Hoover Bartlett

THE PROFESSOR AND THE MADMAN
by Simon Winchester

Chronicles the disastrous 1986 fire at Los Angeles Public Library, the aftermath, and the unique individuals from the past and present surrounding the event.

THE LIBRARY BOOK
by Susan Orlean

The recently late McMurtry reveals personal observations and gossip related to books and the writing world.

BOOKS
by Larry McMurtry

Sink into this Spanish epic full of secrets, murder, love...and of course, books.

THE SHADOW OF THE WIND
by Carlos Ruiz Zafón

Discover books full of danger and daring.